HELP CLANS

Clans are player-run organizations within the MUD. They provide a social structure, often with shared goals, hierarchies, and sometimes specialized benefits like clan halls, equipment, or skills.

Joining a clan typically involves applying ('clanapply') and being accepted by a clan leader or officer ('clanrecruit'). Leaving a clan is usually done with 'clanleave'.

Clans communicate using a private channel ('clan'). They often have ranks, with leaders having powers to promote, demote, and expel members.

See 'help clan commands' for a list of specific commands related to clans.

HELP CLASSES

Your class determines your primary role and abilities within the MUD. Each class has different strengths, weaknesses, skills, spells, and equipment limitations. MysticalMud offers a variety of classes beyond the standard four:

Base Classes:

- Mage: Master of arcane magic, powerful offensive spells, weak in melee.
- Cleric: Wielder of divine magic, healing and protective spells, decent melee.
- Thief: Stealthy and agile, excels at skills like backstab, steal, pick locks.
- Warrior: Master of combat, highest hit points, uses all weapons and armor.

Advanced/Specialized Classes (may require specific alignments or stats):

- Paladin: Holy warrior blending combat prowess with cleric spells.
- Ranger: Wilderness warrior, skilled with bows and tracking, some nature magic.
- Assassin: Specialized thief focused on stealthy killing and poisons.
- Dark Knight: Unholy warrior, blends combat with dark magic.
- Bard: Jack-of-all-trades, uses magical songs, some combat and thief skills.
- Monk: Master of unarmed combat, uses inner strength (ki) for special attacks.
- Druid: Wielder of nature magic, shapeshifting abilities.
- Necromancer: Master of death magic, commands undead minions.
- Illusionist: Mage specializing in spells of deception and misdirection.

You choose your class during character creation. Some MUDs allow multi-classing (combining classes) or remorting (starting over with benefits).

Each level grants increases to hit points (HP), mana (MP), movement points (MV), base stats (Str, Int, Wis, Dex, Con), accuracy (hitroll), damage (damroll), and Armor Class (AC). Higher levels also unlock new spells and skills at guildmasters.

Channels

There are a large number of channels available to you in Mystical, which will allow you to communicate with other players in a variety of ways. The details of each are given below, but the crucial ones are: SAY, TELL and OOC. Learn these first, and the others when you need to, or when you have time. Make SURE you check out POLICY to see the rules on using these channels before you use them. YOU WILL BE HELD RESPONSIBLE FOR THE TERMS OF USE OUTLINED IN POLICY.

SAY - The most basic of channels, this one will relay what you say to everyone in the room you are currently in. There are two ways to say something:

say Hi Everybody!

'Hi Everybody!

TELL - This channel allows you to send a private message to anyone on the mud.

You do not have to be in the same room as the person whom you are telling something. Use:

tell bobby Hey man, what's up?

REPLY - Allows you to reply to the person who sent you the LAST tell you recieved. This will work even if you can't identify the person who sent you the tell. It will continue to send messages to that person on repetitive use, until someone else sends you a tell. Use:

Someone tells you 'Pst! Your fly is unzipped!'

reply Thanks for letting me know!

OOO - This channel broadcasts whatever you say to all of Mystical, OOO stands for out-of-character, meaning this channel is used for general socializing and talking about things outside of roleplaying. Use:

ooo Hey, ya'll! Did you hear the one about the...

STATE - This channel is similar to OOO in usage, but is used for in-character statements. The entire mud sees your message. Use:

state Verily, I have vanquished Elric!

CUSS - This channel is similar to OOO in usage, but it is used for foul language, for those who simply can't control themselves =) This is the ONLY public channel allowing profanity. Type POLICY for more information. Complaints about this channel will be largely ignored, as you have the capability to toggle this channel off at any time. Use:

cuss Hey, you're a <expletive removed> liar!

YELL and SHOUT - These channels are redundant in function and use, their double existence an artifact of older days. Both announce your message to everyone in the zone you are currently in, and cost 10 mv upon each use. Use:

shout Hey, ya'll want to group?

CTELL and GTELL - These channels send a message to everyone currently on that is in your clan, or in your group, respectively. See HELP CLAN COMMANDS and HELP GROUP for more info. Use:

ctell Wow.

We, the members of clan A, or so totally cooler than clan B!

QSAY - This channel sends a message to everyone currently in the same quest as you.

You cannot use this channel if you are not in a quest, and the one running the quest will often place restrictions on its use. See HELP QUESTS. Use:

qsay Hey, I have an idea!

The clue might be referring to...

PSAY - This channel sends a message to everyone in a private channel you belong to. See HELP PSAY. Use:

psay Wow, what a wierdo, huh guys?

AUCTION - This channel is seen by everyone who does not have it turned off, and is used to sell items in a bidding style. See HELP AUCTION. Use:

auction Brand new Beginner's Sword! Min Bid 1M!

SPORTS - This is not a channel that you, as a player, actively use. Instead, this channel displays messages concerning the current arena, if there is one.

See HELP ARENA and HELP NOSPORTS.

PAGE - This is similar in use to the tell channel, but much more attention getting, and reply cannot be used. It can only be used after level 100.

PRAY - The PRAY command creates an entry in the syslog that all immortals see.

It is to be used to communicate to the imms in case of an emergency or to contact them if you need a reimbursement or some other legitimate business.

Do not abuse this command and NEVER spam it or you will be dealt with VERY SEVERELY!

pray Help! Emergency!

NEWBIE HELP - CLASS ABILITIES

In case you didn't already guess from your journey through the Hallway of Learning, combat plays a large part in mudding. If you want to have access to all the skills and spells that your class has to offer, you'll need to gain experience in battle until you're capable of learning them.

To view what skills you will have available, type 'skills i', and use 'spells i' to see what spells your class will get. This will show a listing of the skills/spells with the level you can start to practice them at. Check out the help file for the 'skills' and 'spells' commands for more uses.

The next thing you'll need to know is how to practice your skills and spells. This is done at a guildmaster. All of the classes practice at one of four guilds: Warrior, Thief, Cleric, and Mage. Go to the guild which best suits your class. If you are not allowed in, go to another guild to see if you are a member there. Once inside you can type 'practice' to see a list of the skills and spells you can improve, and the number of practice sessions that you have left. If you see something you want to practice, type 'practice (skill/spell)' and your proficiency will increase slightly. Recommended skills/spells to practice first are: (not all classes will have all the listed items)

WEAPON PROFICIENCY

Represented by 5 skills, slash, pierce, bludgeon, chop, and stab.

You can see which of these skills your current weapon uses by studying combat text closely. A higher proficiency increases your chance to hit.

SPELLCASTING

The spellcasting skill will increase the rate at which you cast spells and is greatly beneficial as your proficiency in this skill increases.

SPECIAL SKILLS/SPELLS

Take advantage of the strengths of your class. If you're a Priest, get a healing spell early on to last longer before resting. If you're a Wizard, the magic missile spell will greatly help you early on.

Swordsmen can get more attacks earlier than anyone else, and so on.

See ATTRIBUTES.

ARMOR CLASS

"AC" is your armor class, the lower it is the better protected you are.

It is a number from -2000 to 100, roughly defined as follows:

100 Butt naked.

0 Hm ... getting there.

-200 Well armored.

-650 About the best AC a player can have.

-865 Hades AC (so now you know).

-1000 A scary AC possessed by some truly nasty mobs.

-2000 You DON'T want to know who has this.

The status command displays your armor class as a number such as 78/10 this means 78 on a scale from 100 down (i.e., 7.8 on the 10-scale).

Basically, just ignore it and concentrate on the first number.

AHALL

Use AHALL to see the Arena statistics.

AHALL - List of the winners of each Arena

AHALL WINS - List of the records of the best Arena players

AHALL LOSS - List of the records of the worst Arena players

AMBUSH

A vicious attack upon an unsuspecting victim. By waiting patiently for the right moment to attack, you are able to unleash a surprise attack, stunning your target for 6 rounds and dealing 300 points of damage. You must be wielding a stabbing weapon for this attack to work.

ANSI COLORCODES

If you have a color-capable terminal and wish to see useful color-coding of information, use the COLOR command to set the level of coloring you see.

color off

This command disables all color.

color sparse

color normal

color complete

These three commands turn color on to various levels. Experiment to see which level suits your personal taste.

Using color will slow down the speed at which you see messages VERY slightly.

The effect is more noticable on slower connections. Even if you have color turned on, non-colored messages will not be slowed down at all.

color test

To use colors, just put a # followed by the color code as follows:

#b - Bright Blue #B - Dark Blue

#w - Bright White #W - Dark White

#r - Bright Red #R - Dark Red

#y - Bright Yellow #Y - Dark Yellow

#c - Bright Cyan #C - Dark Cyan

#m - Bright Magenta #M - Dark Magenta

#g - Bright Green #G - Dark Green

#k - Dark Grey #K - Black

#N - Normal

Always end your color line with a #N to set the color back to normal.

Or if you are using color on a channel that is already colored, substitute the correct colorcode for #N so that the rest of your text is in the same color as the regular color for that channel. For example:

ooc This is #bBlue#Y

Notice the #Y to change the text back to dark yellow which is the normal color for the state channel.

ATTRIBUTES

Within Mystical there are currently 6 base attributes. The maximum amount which these attributes can reach is determined by your current race. They will usually start at an average rating (approx. 9-13) and usually end at the given attributes set for each race. These attributes can also be modified by wearing certain types of equipment and/or casting certain spells. The 6 base attributes are:

STR - A measure of how much brute force you have. It affects how much DR (damroll) you have, and how much is added by STRADD. If you have high strength (18 and above) and depending on the class you will get a number after your strength. This is called STRADD, or additional strength. This number will even further increase the damage you do with a landed hit, though not by too much.

INT (intelligence) - Determines how smart your character is and how quickly they can learn things. Higher intelligence also means you have higher spellpower. Higher spellpower means doing more damage per cast.

WIS (wisdom) - A show of how wise your character is and thus how good their judgement is. This comes into account when making decisions, imparting information upon others, and many other tasks of everyday life.

High wisdom will result in your character having more mana and more mana regeneration.

DEX (dexterity) - Determines how quickly your character can react and how agile they are in general. High dexterity will give you more movement points, and also increase your movement point regeneration.

CON (constitution) - This is how hardy your character is. It measures how strong their frame is and how much physical punishment they can take. A high constitution will give you access to higher hitpoints so you can take more punishment.

CHA (charisma) - How good your character looks and how appealing they are to others around them. A high charisma will give you access to higher hitpoint regeneration.

AUCTION HOUSE

The MysticalMUD auction house is a menu driven auctioning tool that allows the character to buy and sell items with other characters in the realm. Sellers will have the gold automatically added to their bank and buyers will have the item in their inventory after a successful transaction. To use the auction house, type 'ahouse'

NEWBIE HELP - DYING

DYING IS PERFECTLY NORMAL

For those of you out there who have never played a mud before and are panicking just thinking about dying, calm down! It's a perfectly normal occurrence and for some people happens multiple times each day! Dying on Mystical, like on many other muds, doesn't cause severe problems for your character. If all goes well, then all you lose is a large amount of xp, and nothing else.

HOW YOU CAN DIE

There are two main ways you can die in Mystical. The first is death in combat, which is the usual way. This of course happens when you tackle a mob that's too tough for you (remember to always 'consider' new mobs!), or you just get worn down by too many adversaries. The second way to die is by walking into special rooms lovingly known as death traps, or DT's for short. These rooms usually have warnings in the descriptions of the surrounding rooms, and there are spells and skills that'll help you detect them. Even so, they still claim lives.

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN YOU DIE

Well the first thing you'll notice is that you'll be dumped back into the main menu, with a message displaying how much xp you lost. This will likely be confusing for a while, but you should get used to it.

You can now re-enter Mystical in the same way you usually would. You'll enter at the temple of your hometown with 1 Hp and the same amount of Mn and Mv that you died with. Also any maintained spells will have been dispelled.

If you died by walking into a DT, you'll find that your body has retained all of it's possessions by the will of the immortals. However if you died in combat then you have a tougher task ahead, for your corpse along with most of your possessions lies out in the place where you died! If you remember where your corpse is and think you can get it safely, then go ahead and try, else you'll need to ask for a CR (corpse retrieval). NEW! A Corpse Keeper has taken residence in New Thalos. You may ask him to do the CR for you, though he may charge you a fair sum of gold for his services.

ASKING FOR CR'S

A CR is simply asking someone to get your corpse if you can't find the way to it, or you died in a really tough area. Just state on OOC that you need a CR done, and most of the players will know what you're talking about. If you're lucky, a sympathetic soul will heed your plea and try to help you. Try to remember the area where you died as it can greatly speed retrieval efforts. If another player finds your corpse, they'll return it to you promptly and you can retrieve your belongings by typing 'get all corpse'. Don't worry about others trying to loot your corpse, it's quite impossible for anyone but yourself to loot your own corpse.

ESCAPE

This skill is the knowledge of how to avoid panic facing overwhelming enemies.

Instead of fleeing there is a chance that you may succeed with your escape, losing no experience. It is, however, a difficult skill.

FIGHT CLUB FC

Fight Club (FC) is a controlled form of PK, where all players are limited in the TOTAL amount of quest points that their character may have. By creating a more level playing field. (FC) players will have to rely on skill and not massive amounts of qp. (FC) players will be bound to some additional rules that regular (PK) are not. If you wish to engage in the Fight Club you will need to speak with an Imm to have your (FC) status set.

You CANNOT ask to be set (FC) if you are already FULL (PK), you must either be (Safe PK) or non-PK. Once you request to become (FC) you only have 2 options to get out of it. 1st is to sign up for FULL (PK). 2nd is to DELETE.

Once (FC) you may register for full (PK) status but will not be allowed to register for (Safe PK). Pk rules will be in effect, along with the following changes.

You will be flagged (FC).

You are limited in qp to 545 total, regardless of how they are spent. This includes hp/mn/mv, spells, qeq, etc IN ANY COMBINATION!

Example: 200 qhp=400 qp, this leaves you 145 to spend.

Example: 1 piece of 109 qeq leaves you 0 qp to spend.

Any race, class, or remort level is allowed so long as your below 545 qp.

If your qp total is ≤ 545 your (FC) will be dark grey.

If your qp total is > 545 your (FC) will be bright magenta (pink).

If you go over 545qp you will be required to make the necessary changes to get back to 545 or below. This could be by buying prac's or gold, NOT hp/mn/mv or spells as this is included in the 545 qp total. Once you make these changes your (FC) color will change back to (FC) dark grey.

If they are under 545 qp, they are treated as full (PK) against other players with the grey (FC) flag. Against all other players, they are treated as (Safe PK).

Exception

Against players with the pink (FC) flags, you will be able to loot the pink (FC) players, but the pink (FC) ones WILL NOT be able to loot you, since they are in violation of the 545 qp rule.

If it is determined that a character is intentionally abusing the 545 qp limit, they will be dealt with and most likely be deleted. This will also be considered the same as full (PK) in all regards to imms and their alts.

Channels

There are a large number of channels available to you in Mystical, which will allow you to communicate with other players in a variety of ways. The details of each are given below, but the crucial ones are: SAY, TELL and OOC. Learn these first, and the others when you need to, or when you have time. Make SURE you check out POLICY to see the rules on using these channels before you use them. YOU WILL BE HELD RESPONSIBLE FOR THE TERMS OF USE OUTLINED IN POLICY.

SAY - The most basic of channels, this one will relay what you say to everyone in the room you are currently in. There are two ways to say something:

say Hi Everybody!

'Hi Everybody!

TELL - This channel allows you to send a private message to anyone on the mud.

You do not have to be in the same room as the person whom you are telling something. Use:

tell bobby Hey man, what's up?

REPLY - Allows you to reply to the person who sent you the LAST tell you recieved. This will work even if you can't identify the person who sent you the tell. It will continue to send messages to that person on repetitive use, until someone else sends you a tell. Use:

Someone tells you 'Pst! Your fly is unzipped!'

reply Thanks for letting me know!

OOO - This channel broadcasts whatever you say to all of Mystical, OOO stands for out-of-character, meaning this channel is used for general socializing and talking about things outside of roleplaying. Use:

ooo Hey, ya'll! Did you hear the one about the...

STATE - This channel is similar to OOO in usage, but is used for in-character statements. The entire mud sees your message. Use:

state Verily, I have vanquished Elric!

CUSS - This channel is similar to OOO in usage, but it is used for foul language, for those who simply can't control themselves => This is the ONLY public channel allowing profanity. Type POLICY for more information.

Complaints about this channel will be largely ignored, as you have the capability to toggle this channel off at any time. Use:

cuss Hey, you're a <expletive removed> liar!

YELL and SHOUT - These channels are redundant in function and use, their double existence an artifact of older days. Both announce your message to everyone in the zone you are currently in, and cost 10 mv upon each use. Use:

shout Hey, ya'll want to group?

CTELL and GTELL - These channels send a message to everyone currently on that is in your clan, or in your group, respectively. See HELP CLAN COMMANDS and HELP GROUP for more info. Use:

ctell Wow. We, the members of clan A, or so totally cooler than clan B!

QSAY - This channel sends a message to everyone currently in the same quest as you.

You cannot use this channel if you are not in a quest, and the one running the quest will often place restrictions on its use. See HELP QUESTS. Use:

qsay Hey, I have an idea! The clue might be referring to...

PSAY - This channel sends a message to everyone in a private channel you belong to. See HELP PSAY. Use:

psay Wow, what a wierdo, huh guys?

AUCTION - This channel is seen by everyone who does not have it turned off, and is used to sell items in a bidding style. See HELP AUCTION. Use:

auction Brand new Beginner's Sword! Min Bid 1M!

SPORTS - This is not a channel that you, as a player, actively use. Instead, this channel displays messages concerning the current arena, if there is one. See HELP ARENA and HELP NOSPORTS.

PAGE - This is similar in use to the tell channel, but much more attention getting, and reply cannot be used. It can only be used after level 100.

PRAY - The PRAY command creates an entry in the syslog that all immortals see. It is to be used to communicate to the imms in case of an emergency or to contact them if you need a reimbursement or some other legitimate business. Do not abuse this command and NEVER spam it or you will be dealt with VERY SEVERELY!

NEWBIE HELP - CLASS ABILITIES

In case you didn't already guess from your journey through the Hallway of Learning, combat plays a large part in mudding. If you want to have access to all the skills and spells that your class has to offer, you'll need to gain experience in battle until you're capable of learning them.

To view what skills you will have available, type 'skills i', and use 'spells i' to see what spells your class will get. This will show a listing of the skills/spells with the level you can start to practice them at. Check out the help file for the 'skills' and 'spells' commands for more uses.

The next thing you'll need to know is how to practice your skills and spells. This is done at a guildmaster. All of the classes practice at one of four guilds: Warrior, Thief, Cleric, and Mage. Go to the guild which best suits your class. If you are not allowed in, go to another guild to see if you are a member there. Once inside you can type

'practice' to see a list of the skills and spells you can improve, and the number of practice sessions that you have left. If you see something you want to practice, type 'practice (skill/spell)' and your proficiency will increase slightly. Recommended skills/spells to practice first are: (not all classes will have all the listed items)

WEAPON PROFICIENCY

Represented by 5 skills, slash, pierce, bludgeon, chop, and stab.

You can see which of these skills your current weapon uses by studying combat text closely. A higher proficiency increases your chance to hit.

SPELLCASTING

The spellcasting skill will increase the rate at which you cast spells and is greatly beneficial as your proficiency in this skill increases.

SPECIAL SKILLS/SPELLS

Take advantage of the strengths of your class. If you're a Priest, get a healing spell early on to last longer before resting. If you're a Wizard, the magic missile spell will greatly help you early on.

Swordsmen can get more attacks earlier than anyone else, and so on.

color turned on, non-colored messages will not be slowed down at all.

To use colors, just put a # followed by the color code as follows:

#b - Bright Blue #B - Dark Blue

#r - Bright Red #R - Dark Red

#y - Bright Yellow #Y - Dark Yellow

#c - Bright Cyan #C - Dark Cyan

#m - Bright Magenta #M - Dark Magenta

#g - Bright Green #G - Dark Green

#k - Dark Grey #K - Black

#N - Normal

Always end your color line with a #N to set the color back to normal.

Or if you are using color on a channel that is already colored, substitute the correct colorcode for #N so that the rest of your text is in the same color as the regular color for that channel. For example:

ooc This is #bBlue#Y

Notice the #Y to change the text back to dark yellow which is the normal color for the state channel.

Channels

There are a large number of channels available to you in Mystical, which will allow you to communicate with other players in a variety of ways. The details of each are given below, but the crucial ones are: SAY, TELL and OOC. Learn these first, and the others when you need to, or when you have time. Make SURE you check out POLICY to see the rules on using these channels before you use them. YOU WILL BE HELD RESPONSIBLE FOR THE TERMS OF USE OUTLINED IN POLICY.

SAY - The most basic of channels, this one will relay what you say to everyone in the room you are currently in. There are two ways to say something:

say Hi Everybody!

'Hi Everybody!

TELL - This channel allows you to send a private message to anyone on the mud.

You do not have to be in the same room as the person whom you are telling something. Use:

tell bobby Hey man, what's up?

REPLY - Allows you to reply to the person who sent you the LAST tell you recieved. This will work even if you can't identify the person who sent you the tell. It will continue to send messages to that person on repetitive use, until someone else sends you a tell. Use:

Someone tells you 'Pst! Your fly is unzipped!'

reply Thanks for letting me know!

OOO - This channel broadcasts whatever you say to all of Mystical, OOO stands for out-of-character, meaning this channel is used for general socializing and talking about things outside of roleplaying. Use:

ooo Hey, ya'll! Did you hear the one about the...

STATE - This channel is similar to OOO in usage, but is used for in-character statements. The entire mud sees your message. Use:

state Verily, I have vanquished Elric!

CUSS - This channel is similar to OOO in usage, but it is used for foul language, for those who simply can't control themselves =) This is the ONLY public channel allowing profanity. Type POLICY for more information. Complaints about this channel will be largely ignored, as you have the capability to toggle this channel off at any time. Use:

cuss Hey, you're a <expletive removed> liar!

YELL and SHOUT - These channels are redundant in function and use, their double existence an artifact of older days. Both announce your message to everyone in the zone you are currently in, and cost 10 mv upon each use. Use:

shout Hey, ya'll want to group?

CTELL and GTELL - These channels send a message to everyone currently on that is in your clan, or in your group, respectively. See HELP CLAN COMMANDS and HELP GROUP for more info. Use:

ctell Wow. We, the members of clan A, or so totally cooler than clan B!

QSAY - This channel sends a message to everyone currently in the same quest as you. You cannot use this channel if you are not in a quest, and the one running the quest will often place restrictions on its use. See HELP QUESTS. Use:

qsay Hey, I have an idea! The clue might be referring to...

PSAY - This channel sends a message to everyone in a private channel you belong to. See HELP PSAY. Use:

psay Wow, what a wierdo, huh guys?

AUCTION - This channel is seen by everyone who does not have it turned off, and is used to sell items in a bidding style. See HELP AUCTION. Use:

auction Brand new Beginner's Sword! Min Bid 1M!

SPORTS - This is not a channel that you, as a player, actively use. Instead, this channel displays messages concerning the current arena, if there is one. See HELP ARENA and HELP NOSPORTS.

PAGE - This is similar in use to the tell channel, but much more attention getting, and reply cannot be used. It can only be used after level 100.

PRAY - The PRAY command creates an entry in the syslog that all immortals see. It is to be used to communicate to the imms in case of an emergency or to contact them if you need a reimbursement or some other legitimate business.

Do not abuse this command and NEVER spam it or you will be dealt with VERY SEVERELY!

DEFENSIVE STANCE

Defensive stance is a skill that can be toggled on or off. It can last up to the user's level in seconds if it is not manually turned off.

For the duration of this skill, all incoming damage received by the player from skills (such as kick, circle, or headbang) is halved. This halved amount is instead dealt to the user's movement points.

At the same time, while this skill is active, the user's movement regeneration after all buffs and debuffs are totalled (eg. after poison's reduction, or after a dexterity spell) is doubled.

TIME DELETION

Lengths of time for time-deleting of characters. That is, characters that haven't logged on for a certain number of days will be time-deleted.

The lengths of time are as follows:

90 days for non-remorts levels 10-29

30 days for non-remorts levels 1-9

DEMI-GOD

Demi-God is the final remorting stage for the good path. Still looking like a human they are surrounded by a bright glowing aura that keeps the environment warm and peaceful. Did you see a halo there? Nah... Because of their immortality they don't have to eat (nohunger) or drink (nothirst).

After a Demi-God has reached level 109 he/she will be added to the Mystical Hall of Fame - as a tribute to the prowess of the player and character.

ATTRIBUTES

Within Mystical there are currently 6 base attributes. The maximum amount which these attributes can reach is determined by your current race. They will usually start at an average rating (approx. 9-13) and usually end at the given attributes set for each race. These attributes can also be modified by wearing certain types of equipment and/or casting certain spells. The 6 base attributes are:

STR - A measure of how much brute force you have. It affects how much DR (damroll) you have, and how much is added by STRADD. If you have high strength (18 and above) and depending on the class you will get a number after your strength. This is called STRADD, or additional strength. This number will even further increase the damage you do with a landed hit, though not by too much.

INT (intelligence) - Determines how smart your character is and how quickly they can learn things. Higher intelligence also means you have higher spellpower. Higher spellpower means doing more damage per cast.

WIS (wisdom) - A show of how wise your character is and thus how good their judgement is. This comes into account when making decisions, imparting information upon others, and many other tasks of everyday life. High wisdom will result in your character having more mana and more mana regeneration.

DEX (dexterity) - Determines how quickly your character can react and how agile they are in general. High dexterity will give you more movement points, and also increase your movement point regeneration.

CON (constitution) - This is how hardy your character is. It measures how strong their frame is and how much physical punishment they can take.

A high constitution will give you access to higher hitpoints so you can take more punishment.

CHA (charisma) - How good your character looks and how appealing they are to others around them. A high charisma will give you access to higher hitpoint regeneration.

NEWBIE HELP - DYING

DYING IS PERFECTLY NORMAL

For those of you out there who have never played a mud before and are panicking just thinking about dying, calm down! It's a perfectly normal occurrence and for some people happens multiple times each day! Dying on Mystical, like on many other muds, doesn't cause severe problems for your character. If all goes well, then all you lose is a large amount of xp, and nothing else.

HOW YOU CAN DIE

There are two main ways you can die in Mystical. The first is death in combat, which is the usual way. This of course happens when you tackle a mob that's too tough for you (remember to always 'consider' new mobs!), or you just get worn down by too many adversaries. The second way to die is by walking into special rooms lovingly known as death traps, or DT's for short. These rooms usually have warnings in the descriptions of the surrounding rooms, and there are spells and skills that'll help you detect them. Even so, they still claim lives.

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN YOU DIE

Well the first thing you'll notice is that you'll be dumped back into the main menu, with a message displaying how much xp you lost. This will likely be confusing for a while, but you should get used to it.

You can now re-enter Mystical in the same way you usually would. You'll enter at the temple of your hometown with 1 Hp and the same amount of Mn and Mv that you died with. Also any maintained spells will have been dispelled.

If you died by walking into a DT, you'll find that your body has retained all of it's possessions by the will of the immortals. However if you died in combat then you have a tougher task ahead, for your corpse along with most of your possessions lies out in the place where you died! If you remember where your corpse is and think you can get it safely, then go ahead and try, else you'll need to ask for a CR (corpse retrieval). NEW! A Corpse Keeper has taken residence in New Thalos. You may ask him to do the CR for you, though he may charge you a fair sum of gold for his services.

ASKING FOR CR'S

A CR is simply asking someone to get your corpse if you can't find the way to it, or you died in a really tough area. Just state on OOC that you need a CR done, and most of the players will know what you're talking about. If you're lucky, a sympathetic soul will heed your plea and try to help you. Try to remember the area where you died as it can greatly speed retrieval efforts. If another player finds your corpse, they'll return it to you promptly and you can retrieve your belongings by typing 'get all corpse'. Don't worry about others trying to loot your corpse, it's quite impossible for anyone but yourself to loot your own corpse.

HEROIC RESCUE

This skill works in conjunction with rescue and protect. Heroic rescue will let you throw yourself between your friend and the enemy, making you receive the full damage the opponent was about to do. Of course, there is a thin line between heroism and foolishness...

Skill: Hide

When you type hide there is a chance that you hide in the room. If hidden you can only be "sensed" by the "sense life" spell. Even if you are sensed, your identity will remain hidden. Hide is broken by pressing return, regardless of whether you typed a command or not.

hide

Ok.

HITROLL

This number is added to your chance of successfully striking with a weapon or your hands during combat. It's based upon your character's intelligence, wisdom, and dexterity.

HALFLING

These small people are often underestimated because of their size. That is their advantage however. Most halflings are peace loving and lazy, seldom leaving their village to roam among the 'giants', but there are young adventurous ones that will lighten your purse if you don't watch out.

HOLY WORDS

Holy words are the most potent of all spells, transforming long periods of tedious memorization into a single, sublime burst of arcane majesty. They can only be learned by the most dedicated spellcasters, but they have truly devastating effects. No saves are allowed against holy words of any kind, nor is there a way to resist them.

PREPARING

A holy word must be memorized before you will be able to use it. This is done by casting the spell as normal. This can be a long and tedious process in many cases. When it reaches 100%, you will have memorized it.

All holy words you have memorized will show up in your statistics window. You can't have more than one of any given holy word memorized simultaneously. i.e. You may have a 'Reckoning' and a 'Restore' memorized, but not two of 'Restore'.

USING

Holy words may only be used in combat, and some have additional restrictions outlined under their individual descriptions. You use a memorized holy word by typing, not saying, it. e.x.:

reckoning

'reckoning'

Using aliases is recommended for the longer ones. Once you use the word in combat, your memory will be cleared of that word, and you will need to memorize it again.

HOLY WORDS

RECKONING - The most gruesome of all holy words, this tremendously powerful spell may instantly slay your opponent. Though beware! Invented by the council of mages as a self defense spell, this power word will backfire on any mage that uses it after initiating combat! In addition, you can only use this power word when your life is in danger (when you are at or below 1/4th of your maximum hitpoints).

losing no experience. It is, however, a difficult skill.

EXAMINE

Examine functions exactly like the look command when used with items and mobs, except when you examine a container item the contents will always be shown too. Typing examine by itself will not describe the room like the look command however. Finally, if a room description asks you to look at something, perhaps a sign or some other object, look will work and examine won't. Examine is really just an alternative command to look with a bit more ease of use when you examine items.

examine (won't work, only look can describe room contents) examine bread (same as look) examine angel (same as look) examine backpack (will show the container's contents as well as it's description)

EXITS

Gives you a list of the obvious exits from your location. Of course, the less obvious ones won't show up here - you have to THINK in order to locate those.

EXPERIENCE XP

Whenever you kill a monster or a player, you earn experience points. When enough experience points are earned, you raise a level. Things you should know about experience points:

- When damaging a monster, you get experience points.
- If you kill a monster of higher level than yourself, you get bonus experience points. If killing a monster of lower level you'll gain less experience points

FIGHT CLUB FC

Fight Club (FC) is a controled form of PK, where all players are limited in the TOTAL amount of quest points that their character may have. By creating a more level playing field. (FC) players will have to rely on skill and not massive amounts of qp. (FC) players will be bound to some additional rules that regular (PK) are not. If you wish to engage in the Fight Club you will need to speak with an Imm to have your (FC) status set. You CANNOT ask to be set (FC) if you are already FULL (PK), you must either be (Safe PK) or non-PK. Once you request to become (FC) you only have 2 options to get out of it. 1st is to sign up for FULL (PK). 2nd is to DELETE. Once (FC) you may register for full (PK) status but will not be allowed to register for (Safe PK).

Pk rules will be in effect, along with the following changes.

You will be flagged (FC).

You are limited in qp to 545 total, regardless of how they are spent. This includes hp/mn/mv, spells, qeq, etc IN ANY COMBINATION! Example: 200 qhp=400 qp, this leaves you 145 to spend. Example: 1 piece of 109 qeq leaves you 0 qp to spend.

Any race, class, or remort level is allowed so long as your below 545 qp.

If your qp total is ≤ 545 your (FC) will be dark grey. If your qp total is > 545 your (FC) will be bright magenta (pink).

If you go over 545qp you will be required to make the necessary changes to get back to 545 or below. This could be by buying prac's or gold, NOT hp/mn/mv or spells as this is included in the 545 qp total. Once you make these changes your (FC) color will change back to (FC) dark grey.

If they are under 545 qp, they are treated as full (PK) against other players with the grey (FC) flag.

Against all other players, they are treated as (Safe PK). Exception Against players with the pink (FC) flags, you will be able to loot the pink (FC) players, but the pink (FC) ones WILL NOT be able to loot you, since they are in violation of the 545 qp rule.

If it is determined that a character is intentionally abusing the 545 qp limit, they will be dealt with and most likely be deleted.

This will also be considered the same as full (PK) in all regards to imms and their alts.
